Modern French

Sutherland Furniture's newest addition to its innovative outdoor furniture is the Hurel collection. French furniture designer Philippe Hurel combines a contemporary aesthetic with a classic European sensibility learned from his father and grandfather.

Mix in a bit of midcentury and Bauhaus, and you have a sense of Hurel's taste. Sutherland by Philippe Hurel is constructed of natural teak and will stand out whether used inside or out. To the trade only. The David Sutherland Showroom is located in the Dallas Design Center, 1025 N. Stemmons Freeway, Suite 340; 214-742-6501; www.sutherlandfurniture.com

We like this

Fort Worth-based Acme Brick celebrated its 118th anniversary in April by giving its employees a little green gift: four 100-watt compact fluorescent light bulbs. That's 8,800 bulbs aimed at saving nearly a million dollars over the total lifetimes of all the bulbs.

Ode to the carnation

While the lowly carnation rarely gets any love, we love it massed in an interesting vase, and the peppery smell is heavenly. Stick with a monochromatic look for major impact and remember that colored carnations are highly symbolic. The pink flowers are the symbol of a mother's undying love, making them perfect for you know who. An aside: 2009 marks the 100th anniversary of the first U.S. export of carnation seeds to Japan. Global Views vase, $60, dh Collection.
