FOR HOME OPENS and Emily Summers ON THE MOVE

Knox-Henderson continues to evolve into a powerhouse retail and home design mecca. Forty Five Ten's stylish new interiors boutique, For Home, opened early this month, at 4510 McKinney, housed in the boutique's former space. (As the world knows, Forty Five Ten is now located downtown in a gleaming new structure.) Forty Five Ten's home creative director, Rob Dailey, has pulled together showroom owners, designers, and gallerists to showcase: Jan Showers, Emily Summers, Allan Knight, David

Sutherland, George Cameron Nash, Jan Barboglio, Peacock Alley, and Talley Dunn Gallery. The beloved T-Room lunch spot, which never closed during the transition, lives on. We're covering all the details in depth in our April issue ... We've learned that Emily Summers Studio design shop (stocking her exclusive collections from KGBL, Saridis of Athens, Cedric Hartman, and Emily Summers Studio furniture) is relocating from its Highland Park Village location to a spot just north of McKinney Avenue on Insurance Lane. Summers' design firm will be under the same roof. Emily Summers Studio, 4639 Insurance Lane, emilysummersstudio.com; emilysummers.com. Rebecca Sherman
